A self-described “explorer of the Social Age,” Julian is devoted to helping organizations form strategy and shape projects to deliver transformative change. His numerous books, articles, papers and blog posts provide windows into topics like social learning, social leadership, collaborative technology, social justice, and dynamic change.

In 2014, Julian founded Sea Salt Learning, a global consultancy that delivers services and solutions around learning, leadership, technology, and change.

Uniquely positioned to enable innovation and change in complex environments, Chris' life's work is to empower people to learn and collaborate across wide-ranging boundaries to tackle their toughest challenges.

He's been able to do just that through executive roles with the globally top-ranked Center for Creative Leadership (CCL), Juniper Networks in Silicon Valley, and now as the Director of Learning, Leadership & Organization Development with the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation.

Reda is an educational innovator with over two decades working in the United Nations, the Red Cross Red Crescent Movement, and in local communities. Reda believes in doing new things in new ways to do more, do better, and reach further – and to do good.

Known as a “Citizen of the World”, Kimo Kippen is a thought leader and sought-out international keynote speaker. His goal is to make a difference in the world by inspiring business and civic leaders, as well as employees, to think outside the box.

As the Chief Learning Officer of Hilton Worldwide, Kimo has transformed its learning and development culture, directly improving the company's guest scores, brand loyalty, and global market foothold.

Most recently, he has supported the success of Hilton’s “Travel with Purpose” initiative, which educates and trains company team members on how to help stop child trafficking.
1.1: 1600 Heads Are Better Than One!

Kimberli Jeter
PYXERA Global
@Kimberlijeter

Brain Washburn
SightLife
@flipchartguy

Broaden your reach and increase your impact.

This interactive session will help you describe the value of expanding your learning network, develop building blocks to solve a current job challenge, and identify resources available to you for expanding your L&D skill set, such as networking events, social media, conferences, and volunteer opportunities. We'll also explore no-cost and low-cost strategies for fostering ongoing learning across your organization.

1.2: Democratizing Access to Learning

Atish Gonsalves
Humanitarian Leadership Academy
@atishgonsalves

Reaching traditional and non-traditional humanitarian actors

This session will look at how blended learning solutions can be used to scale up access to engaging learning for individuals, communities and organizations responding to disasters in their own communities.

1.3: Certification Standards for the Sector

Mike Culligan
LINGOs
@culliganmike

Raising capability of an agency at its highest levels

As LINGOs continues to collaborate with dozens of international NGOs to develop a series of certification-based standards for the sector, new opportunities are emerging to link these standards to an organization's Learning and Development Strategy. This session will explore creative approaches to connect certification-based standards to integrated talent management systems, development planning and career models.

KEYNOTE:

WELCOME TO THE SOCIAL AGE:

EXPLORING THE NEW ECOSYSTEM WE INHABIT

Julian Stodd
Sea Salt Learning
@julianstodd

Organizations need to change how they shape and deliver learning in response to changes in the way that we learn. In this session we'll explore a framework for scaffolded social learning: a design methodology that combines both formal and tacit, tribal forms of knowledge.

We will look at examples of storytelling, community and co-creative technology, as well as the role of trust and social leadership in making social learning successful.

We will consider how to measure success and how organizations must become truly socially dynamic if they are to thrive in the Social Age.
WORKSHOPS

2.1: The Launch of WCS U
Michelle Turchin & Carolyn Gibson
Wildlife Conservation Society
@mkturchin

Looking beyond the system

In this session, we'll discuss how WCS used LINGOs-provided learning technologies to launch its WCS U learning community. We'll explore how to align learning strategy with your organizational strategy and mission, and how to build a learning community through strategic communication and engagement activities.

2.2: Social Learning: Join the Revolution
Alan Betts
HT2
@alanbettsht2

Drive a higher level of engagement in learning

Fed up with the tyranny of the “next” button and looking for a new way to drive higher level of engagement in learning? Prepare to join the Social Learning Revolution! In this session, you’ll learn from a variety of case studies just what an impact Social Learning can have on an organization. You will also be encouraged to take part in a small Social Learning experiment so you can experience the results firsthand.

2.3: Improv Lab
Kristin Hibler
K Hibler Consulting

L&D Applications of improv for the INGO sector

Improvisation (improv) has enormous potential in the INGO sector, both as a learning methodology and as a philosophical framework. It can be used in a variety of settings to quickly break down barriers and build a learning community at an INGO joint gender conference, to enhance trust and leadership agility with several groups of leaders, to help teams build more mindful ways of engaging with each other, to wake people up in the middle of the afternoon, or simply to spur creativity.

3.1: Making the Move
Heather Snyder
The Nature Conservancy
@nature_org

Converting an instructor-led training to a web-based training

Transitioning an instructor-led training to a web-based training offers obvious advantages, including addressing resource availability, budget issues, and online learner-centric activities. But how do you make the move?

Learn how to create an interactive multimedia e-learning environment that makes innovative and inventive use of tools you may already have at your disposal.

3.2: Learning Localization
John Cropper & Juan Manuel Palacios
LINGOs
@johncropper

Learning for development organizations in Latin America and the Caribbean

In this session, we’ll explore LINGOs learning initiatives aimed at helping local and national NGOs engage with sector-wide learning and “powering up” how individuals and organizations learn from each other.

3.3: The Leader as Learner
Tosca Bruno-Van Vifjeijken
Maxwell School, Syracuse University
@MaxwellSU

Transitioning to top leadership in INGOs

How can NGO leaders help the organization and its employees to learn if they cannot? How can NGO top leaders maintain a “learning agility and commitment to learning”? What are the challenges to individual learning that top NGO leaders face and how can they overcome them? This interactive session will share observations across the cohorts of INGO alumni of the past five years of the Transnational NGO Leadership Institute.

Learning is the solution
4.1: Hands-on Practice

Aina G. Irbe
ADCI/VOCA
@acdivoca

Jacqueline Deelstra
Creative Associates International

Selecting the right technologies for a blended learning solution

Based on decades of practical, global experience in learning technologies and training, Aina Irbe and Jacqueline Deelstra have developed a framework to systematically lead the user to recommendations for learning technology solutions, and to ensure that these learning solutions meet the needs of learners.

Explore common challenges when building these blended solutions.

4.2: Developing E-workshops

Terry Lewis
Mango
@Mango4NGOs

What Mango has learned about facilitating active learning and group tasks asynchronously

In this session, Terry Lewis, Mango’s Director of Learning and Development, will share lessons and top tips learned from developing and running several e-workshops. Discuss how to create and active engaged groups of learners (and how to deal with learners who don’t engage), the "dos" and "don'ts" of setting group tasks, and how to develop and sustain an active question-asking culture in an online setting.

4.3: From ZERO to Strategic Positioning

Ennie Chipembere
ActionAid
@EnnieChipembere

The L&D Journey in ActionAid

In this session, we’ll learn from ActionAid’s journey: from not having a Learning and Capacity Development unit to having a function that is strategically positioned, sponsored by the CEO and senior leadership, owned by key stakeholders in the federation and relevant to learners. Replicate strategies put in place to showcase the benefits of an ecosystem approach and get buy-in from senior leadership and key stakeholders.
5.1: Out of the Box and Into Practice!
Shannon Dowd
PATH
@PATHtweets
Paige Winn
FHI 360
@camperrevamper
Facilitated ecourses create custom learning
Are you tasked with delivering more— but with fewer funds and resources? Do you lack geographically-located, skilled facilitators to meet the needs of all your learners? If so, then don’t miss this session! Join Paige Winn (FHI 360) and Shannon Dowd (PATH) as they walk you through Facilitated eLearning, a process to identify and review third-party online content, build contextualized interactions to support learning objectives, and infuse organization-specific practices.

5.2: Big data, analytics, and strategy to promote learning in NGOs
Lisa Giacumo
Boise State University
@Giacumo
Taking the big dreams from big data and making it a reality.
Join Lisa as she explores the data that will help us to drive learning forward in our organizations. Big data can be overwhelming without the right understanding and also lenses to view it with. But going beyond viewing it to a place where it becomes a driver for learning engagement will increase capacity within our organizations and take learning to the next level.

5.3: From Traditional eLearning to Mobile Learning
Pascal Debordes
Cegos
@Cegos
The growing appetite for mobile learning.
Cegos has delivered an e-learning Catalog for several years. Now, Cegos is launching a new Mobile Catalog on business and professional skills.
In this session, Pascal Debordes will provide answers to the questions that learning and development professionals often ask about Mobile Learning, like How does Mobile Learning reflect the needs of learners? Aren’t all mobile learning solutions pretty much the same? and How well does Mobile Learning work on tablets and smartphones? Join Pascal’s session to find out!

6.1: Skilled Practitioners, Effective Institutions
Sarah Ford
Catholic Relief Services
@Philopportunity
Professionalizing and scaling up partnership and capacity strengthening
In this session, you’ll get an inside look at how CRS built the online Institute for Capacity Strengthening – an online one-stop shop for resources and learning that supports effective partnership and real-time solutions to organizational effectiveness challenges.

6.2: Preventing Corruption in Humanitarian Aid
Anne Signe Hørstad
Transparency International Norway
@anticorruption
Achieving this through eLearning and ILT
Understand how they are expanding the awareness and ability of the humanitarian community to address and handle corruption risks in their programs/operations. You will learn about corruption risks and risk-based tools in humanitarian aid. And explore the new tools developed by.

6.3: Organizational Learning Change Management
Parvati Patil & Thom Sinclair
World Bank
@WorldBank
Build a learning culture and increase adoption to eLearning
Learn about the approach Gateway Academy is taking towards change management, and the traction they are gaining with regards to eLearning adoption with partners in Sub-Saharan Africa. Share your challenges and opportunities in change management and provide inputs into the change management process for Gateway Academy.
7.1: A Story of Data

Kim Hagan
Cornerstone on Demand
@CornerstoneInc

Ross Coxon
LINGOs
@Rosslingos

What happens when the unstoppable learner meets the immovable Learning function

In this session, Kim Hagan (Cornerstone on Demand) and Ross Coxon (LINGOs) will compare LINGOs members’ benchmarks on learning technologies, using the findings of a survey carried out in Syria by CoD.

7.2: Driving to Leadership Development

Gretchen Regehr
Conservation International @ConservationOrg

In real time!

In this session, Gretchen will share a case study of the challenges, wrong turns and successes in driving talent and leadership development in real time, and the solutions and approaches she has implemented along the way. You’ll explore the talent identification and review process that has worked for CI, learn about the methodology that resonated with a science-based organization for defining Leadership Competencies, hear about the Leadership Development approach and how we’re trying to sustain the momentum, and share your wins and challenges in Leadership Development with your peers.

7.3: Mobile Learning on the Go

Nick Martin
TechChange
@TechChange

Reaching a global audience

The mobile phone is rapidly bringing communication to the most remote areas of the world. NGOs, governments and companies alike are beginning to realize the potential of this ubiquitous tool to address a variety of global educational challenges. This interactive session will explore successful examples of mobile devices used to facilitate teaching and learning. It will also critically engage with issues of equity, privacy and access. You can expect a dynamic learning environment with a number of real-world case studies and hands-on activities.

KEYNOTE: USING BOUNDARY SPANNING NETWORKS TO DEVELOP COLLECTIVE CAPABILITY

Chris Ernst
Gates Foundation
@cternst

Explore the notion that boundaries can be experienced in organizations and broader communities as two very different things.

Chris will take a deeper look into the six leadership practices which allow you to create direction, alignment, and commitment between groups to achieve critical organizational outcomes.

As a boundary-spanning leader, understand that your job is to build a bridge, and that your role is to provide the space for these practices to occur.
KEYNOTE: CONNECTING WORK TO HEARTS AND MINDS

Kimo Kippen
Hilton Worldwide
@dkkippen

In this session, Hilton Worldwide CLO Kimo Kippen will describe how he and his team created a learning culture that fosters engagement and alignment among people, processes, and purpose.

Kimo and his team first aligned with business partners and gained senior level sponsorship to create a corporate university that best supports people and process and can achieve the company’s objectives. With this foundation, the company has been able to expand its impact beyond team members to reach communities, and to tackle global issues including human trafficking, literacy, diversity and inclusion, and more.

Thank you to all our sponsors

SPECIAL SESSION:

LEARNING HACKATHON

Friday 30, September

with friends from Seattle's L&D Community

When it comes to learning and training in the world of INGOs, you've probably thought “we could do this better”. You’re not alone! After 2 days of conference content, participants in this workshop will have a chance to collaborate with local workplace learning thought-leaders on ways to put the best ideas into practice. Working quickly and modeled on the hackathon approach, this ideation session will yield practical solutions with near-future implementation possible.

If you want to “hack” some of the major pain points with a group of like-minded disruptors and innovators, join us for this workshop to make learning & training in your organization AWESOME !... or at least better.
